A new national literary and creative arts prize for ordinary people, 70 years and over, who are stuck at home because of Coronavirus. It's named the King Lear Prizes because our greatest writer, William Shakespeare, was faced with a similar situation, with outbreaks of the plague throughout his career, and in particular in 1605-06, when he wrote his King Lear. The Categories are:

- To write a short story, 2,000-10,000 words.
- To write a poem up to 40 lines.
- a solo musical composition, any instrument, solo instrument up to 4 mins.
- a short drama for up to 4 people, up to 15 minutes running time.
- a Piece of art- painting, photography, drawing, textiles, collage or craft.

Please note because of the extension to the lockdown the closing date has now been extended until mid June and the organisers have opened it up to those over 60 years of age.

Prize: £1,000. See website on how to download an application form and submit your entry.

CHRISTIAN AID THANK YOU.

On this final weekend of a very different Christian Aid Week I would, on behalf of Christian Aid, like to thank so many people for their generous gifts. If anyone else still wishes to give, it is not too late!

GOOD NEWS

On Saturday Penny Joyce held a Murder Mystery evening with 7 friends on Zoom! They ate a meal together, but separately, and shared clues about 'who dunnit' between each course. Great fun. She says a real murder did not take place!

Tony Mercer has been helping to put up a new notice board and fencing in the parish hall carpark.

Jean Mercer has been waking up old skills when revisiting different art and craft activities. She hasn't run out of creative things she still want to do and her Techy skills are improving as well, with all the family video calls. She is missing the Messy Church gatherings but keeping in touch with the families and team in different ways. She is actually enjoying the quiet time for reflection and being reminded what is really important.

Bruce and Diane Eagles are well cared for. Their family keep in touch and shop for them and they are keeping well.

The lonesome bench in Diane's photo seemed to speak of Isolation. She took the photo on a walk near the Harnham flood defences.

Munks Close held a carefully socially distanced coffee morning on VE Day, which was very welcome. Otherwise they tend to see neighbours on their front lawns on Thursdays when we clap, blow whistles, bash pots and pans and generally try to be heard!

THIS WEEK:

If anyone would like an Ascension day walk on Thursday, Revd Becky will be exercising towards the picnic bench on Harnham slope to pray with a view over Harnham to the cathedral at 7.30am.
